

Alphonso,

I was there for your Valentine's Meal and am, for lack of a better word, pissed. I am the person who you did not have the balls to come out of the kitchen to talk to because you were too much of a loser to honor your word.

You told me when I made my reservation with you that you would take my Restaurant.com certificate, "NO PROBLEM". I was thrilled. So, when we arrived at your restaurant, we didn't get the specific table we requested, first off. Then, we weren't able to order off the regular menu, as you said would be available to order from that night. Then, you raised your price on the Valentine's meal from $85 to $95!! I think they call that bait and switch and incredibly dishonest.

You are a coward. You ruined our Valentine's. What kind of business owner/manager tells a customer that he doesn't care if he loses that customer's business??? Seriously?? Well, I intend to let EVERYONE I speak with just exactly what I think of your business! I am leaving ratings and comments on every single ratings site you are affiliated with. I am telling all my friends. I am telling every single person I know exactly what I think about you and your restaurant. This is a small town. I am a popular person who knows a lot of people. You chose to mess with the wrong lady.

We will never, ever spend our hard earned money in your establishment again. How very sad for you.
